NOTE TO RESTORED CITIZEN

This certificate evidences the restoration of some, but not all, of the rights forfeited as the result of your conviction in the case listed above. This restoration applies only to rights forfeited as a result of the specific case listed; it does not restore rights still forfeited as a result of other convictions.

If you have no other convictions for which your rights were forfeited, this does restore your rights to vote; to serve on a jury; and to run for or hold most (but not all) elected or appointed offices in the State. To vote, you must first register with your local Board of Elections. Information on registering to vote is available online at http://www.ncsbe.gov.

Unless specifically restored by the laws or agency of the other state or of the United States, this certificate does not:

- expunge, reverse, or conceal the record of conviction in the case listed above;
restore the right to possess a firearm;
restore a drivers license or other government-issued license that may have been revoked or suspended as a result of your conviction;
remove other consequences of conviction, like registration as a sex offender or a court's finding of domestic violence offender status;
satisfy outstanding civil obligations arising from the criminal case, like attorney fees, restitution, or forfeitures;
prevent some licensing agencies or employers from considering your conviction in licensing or employment decisions; or restore other rights or privileges not specifically excluded here.

Questions about the rights that are or are not restored by this certificate should be directed to an attorney or to the government agency with authority over the right or benefit in question (e.g., the local board of elections). The clerk of superior court cannot give you legal advice about rights that are or are not restored as a result of your discharge by the other state or federal agency.
